Who we act for

Our service does not provide a market amongst or between clients for investments or speculation. Each product purchased (or sold) by you is an individual agreement made between you and us as a principal and is not transferable, negotiable or assignable to or with any third party.

When we enter into a financial product with a client via our online trading platforms, we do so as a principal.

How Transactions are confirmed to you

Updated account information will be available no more than twenty-four hours after any activity takes place on your account (subject to any technical support requirement outside our control). Providing account information on your online account will be deemed to be delivery to you of confirmation and account statements. If you require a paper copy of your account statement, then you must request this from our accounts department and this will be sent to you free of charge.

How are we remunerated for the services we provide?

The prices quoted by us to clients may differ substantially from prices available in the primary or underlying markets where contracts are traded. This is due to the spread we include in the price of our products we offer to you.

A spread is the difference between the price or rate at which we buy and sell the products with our hedging counterparties (where applicable) (or the price at which we can buy or sell the underlying asset) and the rate at which we buy and sell products with our clients. Different spreads may also be applied by us depending on factors such as the value of the transaction and the underlying prevailing market conditions. We act as a market maker and not a broker and make our earnings from the spreads embedded in the prices we quote our clients to buy and sell our products.

This spread is factored into the prices or rates quoted to you and is not an additional charge or fee payable by you.

In addition to the spread, ForexCT is remunerated by charging roll over interest. Roll over interest may be charged on those trades which are not closed out prior to at 12:00 AM Greenwich Mean Time and are held overnight (“rolled over”). Roll over refers to the interest you may be charged daily on the face value of your open positions. The amount of roll over interest paid will depend on a number of factors, including; the type of product (foreign exchange, commodity or Contract for Difference), the size of the trade, and the direction of the trade (whether it was bought or sold). You are able to view our roll over rates for each product through the downloadable PROfit and MetaTrader 4 trading platform. If you operate our mobile application, then please contact us directly for current roll over rates.

How our employees are remunerated

Our employees receive salaries and commissions. The commissions are based on a combination of the individual employee’s total clients’ net deposits, trading volume generated and revenue earned from the trades transacted.

If specified in a PDS for a product, you may authorise us to collect an Advisor Fee or Advisor Payment on behalf of Advisor in relation to financial product advice given by that Advisor to you. The relevant amount of the fee or payment you authorise us to collect will be specified in the relevant PDS. We may pay bonuses to employees from time to time. These bonuses are in compliance with applicable rules, laws and regulations.

Our associations and relationships with others

We do not have any relationships or associations with financial product issuers which might influence us in providing you with our financial services.

We may, from time to time, have relationships with other financial services providers, such as introducing brokers and referrers. These companies or individuals are not employed by ForexCT, nor are they agents of ForexCT. They may be entitled to remuneration as a result of performing certain services (such as referring clients to ForexCT). This remuneration may be a one off referral fee or may be a trailing commission based on volume of trades entered into by the referred client.
